IT'S OFFICIAL! OBAMA IS NUTS!

Top diplomat spills beans on SECRET DOSSIER

PRESIDENT Barack Obama is NUTS – and should be booted out of office!

That's the shocking opinion of the heads of an entire European country and ally of the U.S., according to John Schindler, a former analyst with the National Security Agency (NSA).

Schindler revealed the stunning opinion of the officials of the nation, a member of the European Union, in a stunning Twitter message, saying, "Had a senior EU diplomat, old friend, ask me today, 'How does your impeachment work?'"

Narcissist Obama was aloof during a meeting with European leaders

"My government believes Obama is quite mentally unwell."

Schindler, now a columnist with The Daily Beast, didn't identify the diplomat or country, but the EU includes the United Kingdom and most of Europe.

"What is striking is that the 'senior EU diplomat' said it was the opinion of his/her government, not his/her personal opinion that Obama was considered a candidate for removal for office for insanity," says a source.

A clear and present psycho: A European government believes Obama is "mentally unwell"

The astonishing report confirms what GLOBE told readers in our March 9 issue. In that edition, a top doctor diagnosed the 54-year-old President as suffering from two severe mental disorders – Histrionic Personality Disorder (HPD) and Narcissistic Personality Disorder (NPD).

The medical expert described Obama as a "white collar psychopath," who "displays behaviors linked to a psychopathic personality – a need for instant gratification and a lack of behavioral restraint.

FLASHBACK: YOU READ IT HERE FIRST!

WE reported concerns about the commander-in-chief's mental health back in MARCH, when experts said Obama's erratic mix of charming and abusive made him a "white collar psychopath." Now a foreign leader says the same thing. We bet he reads GLOBE!

NEW MOM HAYDEN IN TREATMENT TO BEAT BLUES

Hero star suffering from depression

BRAVE Hayden Panettiere is being celebrated as a real-life hero for revealing that she checked into a treatment facility to fight a desperate battle with postpartum depression.

Now fans are cheering for the 26-year-old star of the hit TV series “Heroes” and “Nashville.”

“Women need to know they’re not alone, and postpartum depression does heal,” the blonde beauty says, adding that her struggle to regain an emotional balance has been “really painful,” “really scary,” and requires “a lot of support.”

Hayden and her husband — heavyweight boxer Wladimir Klitschko — celebrated the birth of their daughter Kaya last December.

But the new mother’s joy was ruined by a a horrific struggle with the blues!

A hopeful Hayden was dreaming of motherhood while holding a friend’s baby in 2011

Emotional stress

The actress has boldly announced that she’s entered a clinic to receive treatment for her emotional condition. Postpartum depression can be sparked by lack of sleep, hormonal changes and stress after pregnancy.

Hayden’s treatment could include counseling, antidepressant medication, dietary changes and an exercise program.

As many as 15 percent of all new moms can suffer from the disorder and other mood-related problems, experts say.

Hayden, whose character on “Nashville” is also suffering from postpartum depression, is being hailed for opening up about her real-life struggle.

“In the past, women, particularly in Hollywood, could never admit to battling any kind of depression,” says an industry insider.

“But now stars like Hayden are opening up about postpartum depression, and helping other women feel less alone by talking about their own fight to get healthy again.”

Fellow struggling celebs

Brooke Shields dared to become a celebrity pioneer in discussing postpartum depression after the birth of her daughter in 2003.

“I really didn’t want to live anymore,” she admitted — leading to Scientologist Tom Cruise calling her “irresponsible” for being treated with medication.

Gwyneth Paltrow and Marie Osmond have also talked about their own baby blues.

Hayden’s decision is still “very brave,” a fan writes on the Internet. “Good for her in getting the help she needs!”

NBA superstar Lamar Odom, the estranged hubby of reality TV diva Khloé Kardashian, could have been the victim of a sinister murder plot when he wound up in a coma after a wild rampage at a Nevada brothel.

That's the chilling analysis of a top investigator who reveals there are many "suspicious" things about the 35-year-old hoops legend's shocking collapse at the notorious sex den outside Sin City.

And the former L.A. Lakers player's father, Joe Odom, insists someone forced drugs on his son, who he says was on the comeback trail and cleaning up his act.

"Somebody drugged my son," declares Joe, 61. "There's no way he's down there partying crazy like that. No way."

And a source reports seeing fresh needle tracks on Odom's arm after the stricken millionaire was rushed to the hospital, more proof that the jock may have been injected with a killer drug cocktail.

Former Chicago cop-turned-Hollywood private eye Paul Huebl tells GLOBE lawmen are taking the suspicions raised by Odom's dad very seriously.

"Joe was in close contact with his son and knew he was trying to get his NBA career back on track," say Huebl. "He can't accept that his son would go off on a bender like this and is certain someone forced him to take drugs."

"Joe believes someone tried to murder his son, and he wants answers. The needle marks are very suspicious," notes the investigator.

"A hospital witness said Lamar's body was covered in needle marks from shooting drugs," says Huebl. "Doctors will know immediately whether those are fresh injection tracks. Cops

Nevada officials also reveal they intend to put the heat on employees of Dennis Hof's Love Ranch South, where Odom was found, if they uncover any evidence of foul play.

Lawmen vow to charge any hookers or staff who obstruct their probe — or provided illegal drugs to the 6-foot-10 basketball forward, who married into the Kardashian clan in 2009.

Lamar's divorce from Khloé Kardashian has not been finalized, so as his wife she has control over medical decisions — and his $30 million fortune!

‘Cops will investigate this incident as if it’s a murder — whether he lives or dies’

Huebl says investigators will check surveillance camera footage, Lamar's credit cards and personal property to see if he was robbed.

The private eye also notes Odom ran up a staggering $75,000 bill during his wild spree at the legal cat house. Huebl asks, “How did he run up such a bill?”

Was anyone there supplying him with illegal drugs that could have caused him to OD?”

Two Love Ranch prostitutes — Monica Monroe and Ryder Cherry — found the stricken star in a VIP house on the afternoon of Oct. 13.

Lamar was foaming at the mouth and had “blood coming from him”, says Hof.

An ambulance took Lamar to Sunrise Hospital and Medical Center in Las Vegas. He was in critical condition — unconscious, on a ventilator and receiving dialysis due to kidney failure.

Angry and Raging

Sources say the hoops great showed up at the Pahrump hooker haven on Oct. 10 in a rage over the way he was treated on “Keeping Up With the Kardashians,” the hit reality show starring Khloé, 31. She stands to inherit his $30 million fortune — or control his wealth — if he dies or remains unable to make his own decisions. Although they split in 2013, they're not yet legally divorced. The couple's tense relationship has been highlighted on the reality TV series.

The episode that triggered Lamar's rage features his phone chats with Khloé. She expressed fears he might go off the deep end due to the drug-related death of a pal.

Angry Odom reportedly told a hooker he'd taken cocaine — then plunged into a three-day orgy of cognac, herbal Viagra pills and high-priced sex, claim sources.

Odom reportedly popped at least 10 of the Viagra-like pills during his binge.

Brothel owner Hof strongly denied any illegal substances were used at his joint. But a hospital source claims “virtually every drug imaginable was found in Odom's system.”

Now Huebl says a slew of charges are looming in the wake of the tragedy.

“Before this is over we might see several people behind bars, and that's what Lamar's dad would want,” he says.

CAMILLA WINS GAME OF THRONES!

HEARTLESS Camilla has defeated Kate in the fight for the throne — and is sadistically twisting the knife into Prince William's young wife, say sources.

And now, Camilla's terrible onslaught is being blamed for Kate's shockingly gaunt appearance, sparking fears she's suffering from anorexia.

With an official announcement of Camilla's new status as Queen-in-Waiting expected soon, Prince Charles' evil second wife is acting like she's already been crowned. And she's pulling out all the stops to kill her independent daughter-in-law's spirit by forcing Kate to recognize her "superiority!"

"Judging by the Duchess of Cambridge's sudden weight loss, Camilla has managed to get

KATE WASTING AWAY as Charles' wife plans Coronation & turns the screws into her head," a royal insider tells GLOBE. "We can only hope she can find the strength to stay healthy."

Flaunting power

"Camilla is power-crazy and out of control. She's hell-bent on humiliating Kate because she knows the public loves her. Every time she sees her, she rubs it in her face," says the source.

"She told William's wife, 'This is my time and soon everyone will be calling me Queen Camilla — including YOU!'"

A secret report leaked to

The dying Queen will finally pass the throne to Charles GLOBE reveals dying Queen Elizabeth's top advisors recommended she pass the crown to Camilla and Charles because her first choice for successors — William and Kate — needed more time to "train" for their roles as rulers.

Charles' 68-year-old wife "believes her mother-in-law will make her decision public within a few weeks," adds the insider. "Camilla can hardly contain herself. She is already urging her cronies to practice calling her, 'Your Majesty!' She laughs maniacally and tells them, 'That William wants Camilla to back off!

The skin on Kate's forearm shows a loss of muscle definition — she's dropped at least 10 pounds is music to my ears!"

"But she's insanely jealous of wildly popular Kate and couldn't resist warning the younger woman, 'I will destroy you!'"

The 33-year-old mom-of-two fought back, telling her, "You are pure evil — the people hate you. And so do I!" says the source. "But it's plain to see the vicious threat hit its mark — Kate's wasting away."

In fact, onlookers were aghast at how scarily skinny Kate was when she arrived at London's Harrow College to mark World Mental Health Day on Oct. 10.

She appeared to have lost 10 pounds — or more — from her slender frame. The skin on Kate's upper arm clearly showed loss of muscle definition — an indication of an eating disorder. "She's so upset that she hasn't been sleeping and is hardly eating," says a friend.

Loose-cannon Camilla

Following the ugly showdown, sources say Charles, 66, met with his 33-year-old son to smooth things over. But Charles was firm — and insisted HE deserved to become King after waiting a record-breaking six decades to ascend the throne. However, William warned his dad that Camilla has to back off.

"But Camilla keeps turning the screws and is even planning Charles' Coronation," says the insider. "She wants the transition to take place soon after the Queen's 90th birthday next April.

"She's told Kate, 'From now on you must curtsy to me and show me proper respect in public.' And in her most cunning move yet, she's ordering Kate to appear at her side for public events.

"Camilla knows most people don't want her to ever be Queen — but if they have the perception Kate approves, things could turn around."

But the battle is NOT over yet, says the Palace insider.

"On the one hand you have the royals fearing Camilla will dish all the family's dirt if she doesn't get her way. But William and Kate are an irresistible package and there will have to be a compromise to put them on the throne within five years. Camilla may get her way — but not for long."

DIANA'S BODY PARTS FOR SALE!

DEVASTATED Princes William and Harry are enraged a lock of their beloved mother Princess Diana's hair is being sold on the online retail site Amazon, say insiders.

"They're absolutely disgusted that anyone could go so low as to make money selling what the British Monarchist Society has labeled 'essentially a body part,'" says a close source.

The framed hair, which comes with a photo, a reproduction of her signature and "several authentication papers," is reportedly owned by a Mr. G. Vernon and being offered for $1,200.

Says the source, "William and Harry couldn't believe it. The very idea of selling 'a piece' of their mom is stomach-churning. Friends have never seen them so angry!"

Meanwhile, Diana's sons are still trying to solve her murder! As GLOBE revealed last week, the princes have exhumed their mother's body and authorized a new autopsy they hope will resolve the cover-up surrounding her 1997 death in a car accident in a Paris tunnel.

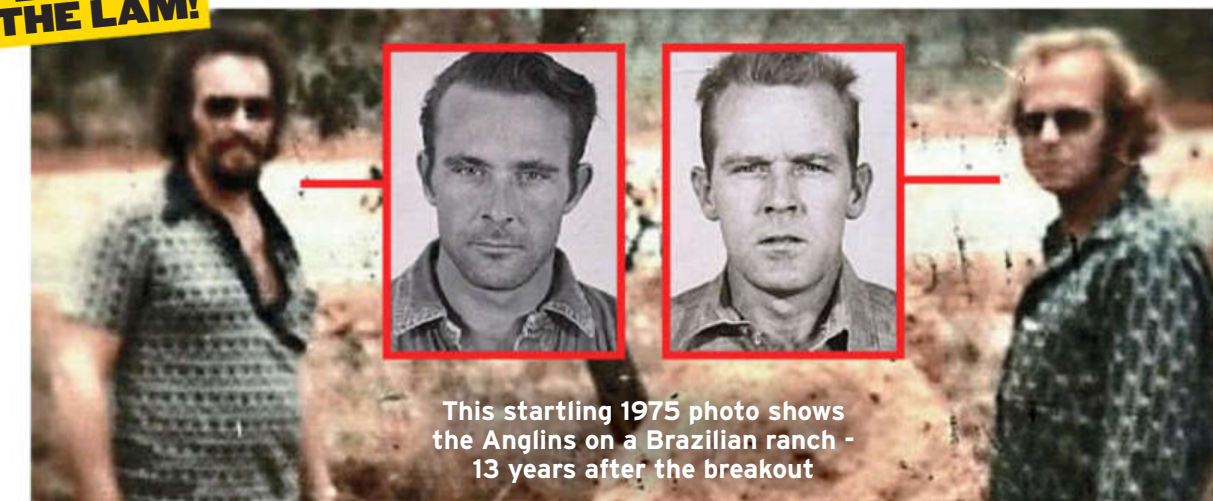

ESCAPE FROM ALCATRAZ!

LIFE ON THE LAM!

EXPLOSIVE new evidence about the most daring prison break in U.S. history, memorialized in Clint Eastwood's hit flick "Escape from Alcatraz," reveals two of the three convicts survived their swim off the remote island — and may still be alive today!

For 53 years, prison officials and FBI investigators covered up the truth and insisted bank-robbing brothers John and Clarence Anglin and their convict pal Frank Morris perished in San Francisco Bay. The trio tunneled out of their cells in the maximum security federal pen and plunged into the freezing, current-ripped waters around Alcatraz.

But a blockbuster new History Channel documentary, "Alcatraz: Search for the Truth," reveals the Anglins didn't drown while swimming 1.2 miles to the California mainland in June 1962. In fact, the brazen brothers body-surfed from the island prison to safety — using an electrical cord tied behind a ferry boat. Once ashore, they eventually skipped off to Brazil where they became ranchers.

Their nephew David Widner, 48, excitedly told filmmakers, "We can now prove to the world that those boys did not drown."

The nephews also produced a stunning photo of the Anglins on their Brazilian ranch. The image was snapped by a family friend in 1975, some 13 years after the breakout.

An expert analyzed the photo and confirmed it was the escapees.

Retired U.S. Marshall Art Roderick, who spent two decades searching for the brothers, concedes the men in the photo are "very likely" John and Clarence Anglin.

But federal officials have repeatedly denied the bust-out was successful. Lawmen proudly boasted The Rock, as the prison was dubbed, was "escape proof" and no convict had ever gotten away during the 24 years it housed America's most dangerous and notorious outlaws.

Before The Rock closed in 1963, 36 men tried to escape. Six were shot, 23 were captured and the others drowned or were presumed dead, prison officials claimed.

But on June 11, 1962, Morris and the Anglins vanished from their cells. Guards discovered the men had put paper mache dummies with real human hair from the prison barber shop in their beds. The men slipped through holes chipped in the walls and vents to reach the roof.

They hopped on a raft fashioned from 52 inflated raincoats and tried to row ashore,

The Rock, built on an island in the middle of San Francisco Bay, was supposed to be escape proof

CONVICTS SURVIVED SWIM TO FREEDOM BUT LYING OFFICIALS INSISTED THEY DIED

according to official reports, which claimed they drowned during the attempt. Nine months later, officials claimed some bones that had washed ashore were the Anglins.

But in 2010, their nephews gave the FBI a DNA sample from the Anglins' brother Alfred. It proved the bones in federal custody WERE NOT the escapees.

Family members also claim they got cards from the brothers three years after their escape!

But the strongest evidence comes from Fred Brizzi, a drug smuggler and childhood pal of the Anglins. He gave the nephews the startling 1975 photo, which he says he took after running into the boys in a Rio de Janeiro bar.

Brizzi claims they told him they took a 120-foot electrical cord later reported missing from the prison dock, tied it to the rudder of a midnight ferry, and were towed out into the bay to a waiting boat.

"According to tide experts, 12 a.m. would have been the only time they wouldn't have been swept up in the current," says a source. Investigators believe Brizzi may have gotten the boat and the men to safety.

The Anglins' nephew Ken says the documentary proves the brothers "actually did get off that island. They actually did survive that crossing.

"It's very possible they are alive today."

Ex-Prez, 91, confined to wheelchair after breaking his neck in shocking collapse

FORMER President George H.W. Bush will be dead by the end of the year!

That's the reluctant prediction of Bush family insiders, who say that the political clan's 91-year-old patriarch is quickly failing since being confined to a wheelchair after a shocking collapse last summer.

'The only thing you can do is pray for him'

The 41st President of the United States — father of both ex-President George W. Bush and current GOP presidential candidate Jeb Bush — has required a neck brace since shattering a vertebrae during a July 15 fall in his Maine home.

Sadly, his condition has not improved, and doctors ruled out surgery due to his age. Bush looked disturbingly frail while throwing the ceremonial first pitch at a baseball game between the Houston Astros and the Kansas City Royals on Oct. 11.

"You can hardly recognize him," says one source. "He doesn't look like the same man who sat in the Oval Office. It's heartbreaking!"

"With all due respect to his family and friends, George has become a feeble old man. He has that look of death about him."

"You get the feeling that his appearance at the baseball game will be the last time we see him in public. It's as if he stepped out to say goodbye!"

And author Stone gladly agrees, telling GLOBE: "The Bush family is evil incarnate!"

He says his book explores the family's scandalous links to both political assassinations and a massive cocaine-dealing operation.

"This book is filled with Bush family outrages, and it just has to be killing the old man," says the insider.

"His health is all but destroyed. His political world is crumbling around him, and his son Jeb is getting his ass kicked by Donald Trump. At this point, the only thing you can do is pray for him!"

KID KILLER

McCarty begged cops to give her the death penalty — but now she says she's innocent

MONSTER MOM IS NEW SUSAN SMITH!

She murdered her k

A CRAZED mother who cops say slaughtered her three young kids — all because she feared her lover was losing interest in her — is America's newest reviled killer!

Twisted Jessica McCarty — who threatened “to snap (her) babies’ necks” before her murderous binge — is drawing chilling comparisons to infamous monster mom Susan Smith.

Cold-hearted McCarty, 33, faces the death penalty on charges she strangled sons Phillip, 6, and 5-month-old Christopher with an electrical cord and drowned 7-year-old daughter Lacey in the bathtub of her Palm Bay, Fla., home.

After the massacre, the demented mom

Cops cuffed McCarty outside her blood-splattered house cut her wrists and texted horrific photos of the lifeless kids — scattered around her blood-splashed house — to boyfriend Chris Swist, 30, so he'd come rushing home, say cops.

McCarty wanted Swist, father of little

Christopher, to suffer for keeping her dangling and making her feel “worthless.”

Cops say she previously warned her relatives she'd use the tykes as bargaining chips in her souring relationship with Swist, vowing to “take them with me when I kill myself.”

Shocking similarities

McCarty's unspeakable actions are reminiscent of the shocking crimes of Susan Smith, who drowned her two sons, ages 1 and 3, in 1994 because she believed her new lover didn't want children.

The South Carolina murderess, now 44 and locked behind bars for life, strapped her helpless boys into their child seats in the back of her car and rolled the vehicle into a lake.

Then, Smith claimed a black man had carjacked her auto with the boys in the back.

Like Smith, McCarty reportedly killed her children over relationship problems.

But instead of trying to dodge prosecution by blaming her unforgivable crime on someone else, McCarty admitted to the March 29 killings, say cops.

After slaying her children, slitting her wrists and texting Swist, she called 911 and reported the murders, cops say.

Authorities arrived to find a heartbroken Swist cradling his lifeless son in his arms and McCarty screaming, "My three kids are dead!"

As the raging mom was subdued and cuffed, she told cops, "Just give me the death penalty here and now."

Amazingly, McCarty has since pleaded "not guilty." But cops say her past is littered with legal troubles and charges of being an unfit mom.

In 2009, welfare workers branded her a "risk" to her kids and advised "mental health counseling."

She also has arrests for forgery, DUI, stolen credit cards and stealing prescription pads.

"This was a troubled woman," a prosecution source says.

WEB OF DEATH!

PULLED THE STRINGS

Potter fueled the plot by creating a fake CIA agent

SHOT DEAD

Billy and Billie Jean's baby was the only survivor

Twisted gal used Facebook to provoke couple's murder

A LOVESICK woman who used the Internet to mastermind the murders of two Facebook rivals claims SHE's the victim — not the couple who was gunned down in cold blood!

Now Jenelle Potter, 34, is planning to appeal her life sentences for the 2012 slayings of Internet enemies Billie Jean Hayworth, 23, and Billie's baby daddy Billy Payne, 36. The couple was shot dead by Potter's father, Marvin, who was pushed into the murder thanks to the ugly scheme concocted by the Tennessee terror and her mom, Barbara, prosecutors say.

Potter insists the slain couple were "cyberbullies"

EVIL KILLERS

Potter's dad Marvin (left) and mom Barbara (right) are serving two life terms, but beau Jamie Curd (center) cut a deal and threatened her life. But lawmen say the murder motive was jealousy — Potter had a crush on Billy and wanted him dead after he moved in with Billie Jean and they had a baby.

To achieve her evil end, prosecutors say Potter created a false online identity — a CIA agent named Chris — with the help of her mother, who was also convicted for the murders.

Posing as the bogus agent, Potter contacted her own parents and her boyfriend, Jamie Curd, expressing fears for her safety and claiming she was in danger from Payne and his baby mama.

The slain couple engaged in a heated Facebook war of words with Potter before their murders. But Potter claims, "I didn't hate them. I just disliked them. I wanted the harassment to stop. I never wished them dead."

Emails found on the family's computer and shredded messages discovered in Marvin's car tell a different story, investigators say.

In a series of electronic exchanges with "Chris," Barbara wrote: "We've had enough. No one wants to kill anyone, but we will."

Lawmen say Barbara showed her overprotective husband the messages — and urged him to save their daughter. Eventually, he snapped. With the help of Curd, Marvin shot Billie Jean as she held her seven-month-old son, who was unharmed. He then turned the gun on Payne. Ultimately, Curd confessed his role in the killing — cutting a deal for 25 years in the slammer — while fingering Marvin, Jenelle and Barbara.

Says Tennessee Bureau of Investigation Special Agent Scott Lott: "Barbara and Janelle would be called masterminds. Janelle kind of spurred it. Barbara got it to happen."

Jenelle's lawyer, Cameron Hyder, says she "operates on the level of an eight- or nine-year-old" and couldn't direct such a complex plot.

A prosecutor counters, "Potter may be on a fourth-grade level, but she has a Ph.D. in manipulation."

Two Hollywood stars are fighting it out for the coveted title of Dumbass of the Week - ragged Randy Quaid and dopey Daniel Craig!

First we have the one-time loveable goofball Quaid. Of course, you remember Randy ... He played wacky cousin Eddie in the Vacation movies with Chevy Chase and co-starred in the smash hits Independence Day and Brokeback Mountain.

He used to make me want to laugh. Now he makes me want to puke. He's gone from wacky to nutty - and not in a good way.

The freaky 65-year-old brother of actor Dennis Quaid has been living in Canada trying to sort out his legal problems in the U.S., where he faces felony charges for vandalism of a guest house and failing to appear in court while on bail.

He and his equally bizarre wife, Evi, claim they're also "on the run" from a group of celebrity-killing assassins they call the "Hollywood star whackers."

Absolutely nuts, right?

They were finally nabbed trying to come across the border and into the U.S., just days before he was scheduled to be deported from Canada.

Kinda makes you wonder if these two loons belong somewhere other than a prison!

Competing against them for the DOTW title is Craig or as he's better known: Bond. James Bond!

Now he's griping he'd rather "slash his wrists" than do another 007 movie.

What a fool!

At least Ellen Pompeo of Grey's Anatomy called him out for it.

"This dude needs a reality check" she says.

Of course, the timing couldn't

CAT'S OUT OF THE BAG!

Jocelyn, 75,

Jocelyn Wildenstein dating younger stud

PLASTIC SURGERY'S $4 million poster gal Jocelyn "Catwoman" Wildenstein was on the prowl at a New York City art exhibit after sinking her claws into a hot younger man!

The 75-year-old socialite made a rare public appearance — with 48-year-old fashion designer Lloyd Klein on her arm — at Jean-Yves Klein's exhibition of cat-themed paintings and ceramic sculptures.

Dubbed "The Bride of Wildenstein," Jocelyn spent a staggering $4 million on plastic surgery to "look more feline" for her then-hubby, billionaire Alec Wildenstein, who was noted for his love of exotic cats.

Her outrageous ops, triggered by fears she'd be dumped for a younger woman, included at least seven facelifts, drastic eye reconstruction surgery and untold collagen injections to her lips, cheeks and chin.

But her nip/tuck addiction ultimately drove her horrified husband away, pals say. He ditched her for a 19-year-old Russian model!

After a messy, two-year divorce, the jilted wife walked away with a $2.5 BILLION settlement, plus $100 million for each of the next 13 years!

Lately, she's been keeping company with designer Klein — who loves to dress his special lady — despite their 27-year age difference.

NEW STREISAND CANCER DRAMA!

Barbra facing more surgery
after COLON OPERATION

JUST 11 years after undergoing hush-hush cancer surgery, Barbra Streisand faces yet another battle with the killer disease!

Exclusive photos obtained by GLOBE show the 73-year-old superstar rushing from a doctor's office in a state of panic.

"Barbra definitely did not want to be spotted, much less photographed," says an eyewitness who observed her in Beverly Hills on Oct. 6.

"She was wearing a big black hat pulled down over her eyes.

BEVERLY HILLS: OCT. 6

Barbra looked to be in a state of panic when she hurried out of a doctor's office; she seemed to be crying, reports our GLOBE spy

JOHN GOODMAN KILLING HIMSELF WITH DEADLY YO-YO DIETING!

"At one point, she peered around a doorway as if to see if anyone was behind her.

"And Barbra was clutching what appeared to be tissue or white handkerchief in her right hand, as if she were crying!"

The two-time Academy Award winner has had regular cancer screenings since surgeons removed part of her colon more than a decade ago after a routine screening revealed the presence of polyps.

According to sources, Barbra has been ignoring doctors' advice to have a hysterectomy.

"Barbra is being told now to undergo the hysterectomy, and she's consulting her doctor," a friend says. "But she's scared to death of going under the knife again, and keeps putting off the operation."

A life in pieces

In 2007, sources say Barbra began suffering the physical consequences of menopause, including hot flashes, night sweats, body aches and mood swings. After menopause, women face risks of breast and uterine cancer, as well as cancer of the cervix. About 10 percent of hysterectomies are performed for cancer, and the rest are done for benign conditions.

A healthier Barbra with Robert Redford in 1973's "The Way We Were"

Adds the source, "Barbra's being told again that she ought to have the surgery, and it's a decision she has to make soon."

The Grammy winner is set to receive a prestigious Hollywood award on Dec. 9. She also plans to direct a new version of "Gypsy," starring John Travolta and Lady Gaga.

"Barbra has so much on her plate right now, but she's obviously consulting with her husband, James Brolin, about what she should do," says the source.

James, 75, is working on the new CBS sitcom, "Life in Pieces," adds the source, and wasn't with her when she left the doctor.

"Now it's Barbra's life that's in pieces — but everyone's pulling for her."

GIANT WEIGHT LOSS was too much, too soon

GUTSY John Goodman recently stepped off the scale 103 pounds lighter — but he's still in deadly danger because his yo-yo dieting is killing him, say experts.

The heavyweight actor's recent pound-shedding is his second mammoth weight loss in five years. In 2010, Goodman, who at one point crushed the scales at 400 pounds, revealed he'd lost 100 pounds. He packed it back on and then dieted again.

Goodman showed off his new, slimmer shape at the recent London premiere of his new flick, "Trumbo."

Now his friends fear the star, who fans loved as Roseanne Barr's TV hubby Dan Conner, is playing Russian roulette with his health!

"Each wildly dramatic fluctuation of weight shortens John's lifespan dramatically," says a top medical expert on diets.

"The yo-yo dieting brings extremely high risk of heart, stroke and kidney failure."

The 63-year-old star also has added risks from boozing, smoking and a family history of heart disease.

His dad, Leslie, died from a massive heart attack in 1954 — at age 36.

GLOBE reported in June Goodman was apparently using cigarettes as a crutch in his latest weight-loss cycle.

A friend says Goodman, who also underwent

John's drastic weight drop has come at a cost, sources say gastric-bypass surgery in 1998, "just looks awful.

"He goes from one extreme to the other — he lost the weight way too fast."

A source previously revealed the star will starve himself and then pig out on "pizza, chili, French fries, eclairs and beer."

His poor diet has led to him developing diabetes.

Over the years, the 6-foot-2 actor's weight has bounced between a low of 290 in 1993 to 400 pounds in 2000.

"Now he's around 260," says the pal. "You think losing weight is good, but in John's case it may be deadly."

Medical news YOU can use!

HEART VALVE IMPLANTS LINKED TO STROKES!

If you have an implanted heart valve, beware!

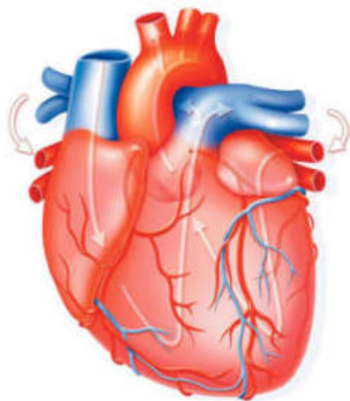

Doctors have discovered the devices don't always open and close properly, increasing your risk of a stroke.

A dangerous blood clot forms when valve implants don't work right, say experts.

The safety problem was discovered last year during a study testing valves

Researchers say 40% of patients with heart valves are at risk, but officials insist the valves are life-savers manufactured by St. Jude Medical that were implanted with a tube.

Now researchers warn at least 40 percent of patients are at risk — regardless of what company made the replacement or the implant method!

And valves made from cow, pig or human tissue seem more likely to cause problems than mechanical devices.

This means hundreds of thousands of Americans are in danger of strokes, say doctors. However, researchers are currently trying to determine if risk begins immediately after the procedure or develops over time.

Federal health officials insist the valves still seem safe and are easier on patients than the alternative, open-heart surgery.

And Cedars-Sinai Heart Institute Dr. Raj Makkar urges Americans to continue getting implants despite the red flags raised by the study.

"These devices are life-saving," says Los Angeles-based Makkar. "The worst thing that could happen is people are afraid to have a valve fixed."

How to make pizza healthier

+ Blotting grease off your pizza can cut 40 calories off every slice! A new study found using a napkin or paper towel to soak up the top layer of oil from a pie saves the equivalent of two pounds worth calories every year! That's important because the average American eats about 87 slices in 12 months, but blotting slashes the caloric intake to the 66 slices!

Why soda is terrible for you

+ Be careful about having too much soda! Two sugary drinks a day will increase your risk of having a heart attack by 35 percent, researchers say. Also, your chances of developing diabetes will go up by 26 percent and the odds of having a stroke will jump by 16 percent. Fructose, a form of concentrated sugar often used as a sweetener, increases production of uric acid which can trigger gout — a painful inflammatory arthritis.

YOGURT HELPS BEAT STRESS!

EATING yogurt twice a day for a month may help relieve anxiety and stress, according to a new study by UCLA's School of Medicine. The pro-biotic richness of yogurt reduces activity in the region of the brain that controls emotion – and also BOOSTS the function of areas linked to decision-making, the research shows. Previous studies have demonstrated the tasty treat fights osteoporosis, improves your immune system and eases the symptoms of irritable bowel syndrome.

NEW HOPE TO END DEADLY HIV VIRUS!

SCIENTISTS believe they're on the brink of cure for the deadly HIV virus that causes AIDS!

Now clinical tests are set for next year on a drug cocktail that uses conventional cancer-busting drugs, a new medicine that reactivates dormant HIV cells – and a new vaccine that kills the infection.

"Our research in the labs has led to some very promising results," says Dr. Sarah Fidler, a researcher at Oxford University's Department of Medicine, which is trying "to prove, in principle, that this strategy could work as a cure."

HIV has been impossible to wipe out because the virus goes to sleep and lurks inside blood cells without being detected. But by activating the infected cells, doctors are able to detect and treat the disease at the source.

Right now, antiretroviral therapy can stop the virus from reproducing, but it doesn't wipe out the disease, so patients have to take the drugs for their entire life. The new cure would actually end the virus.

Beauty Blogger Reports New Skin Cream Can Reduce Nasolabial Folds (Deep lines at sides of nose to mouth)

Ms Parker's Blog showed results after just 21 days of usage ... A REMARKABLE IMPROVEMENT!

Gigi Parker whose blog "Fab Fit Forties" features health and beauty tips, reported her test of a new cream that targets Nasolabial Folds; one of skin care's toughest problems.

Reviva's Cream features special new peptides that can increase fatty tissue volume, helping folds look less pronounced.

The Product: Nasolabial Fold + Multi Peptide Cream by Reviva Labs,

Her blog explained that Reviva Labs research discovered that nasolabial folds are not only the result of "smile or frown lines", but the loss of cheek fat. Reviva reports "as we age the cheek fat slides down toward the nose, causing skin sag and folds."

DIRTY DANCING!

Maks dishes on partners he bedded - and loathed

MACHO Maksim Chmerkovskiy tripped the light fantastic with a bevy of breathtaking beauties over his 14 seasons on “Dancing With The Stars.” Now he’s stepping on their toes!

During a no-holds-barred interview, the hunky Ukrainian hooper was asked which beauty he’d rather bed, wed or kill — and he didn’t pull his punches.

Controversial U.S. women’s soccer star Hope Solo instantly made his “kill” list.

“She’s just a shty person,” he fumed. “If you’re just a bad person, there’s no excuse for that. She wrote a book, she lied about a bunch of stuff.”

In her book, “Solo: A Memoir of Hope,” the soccer player claimed Maks slapped her during “DWTS” rehearsals.

“I had a rough time dealing with that,” admits Maksim, who quit the hit show last year after finally winning the mirror-ball trophy. Incredibly, the heartthrob insists he only hooked up with one of his partners — self-professed Bad Girl of Pop, blonde beauty Willa Ford.

“I did not have relations with any of my partners ... well one!” he says. “Willa Ford, we dated for a little while — I’m gonna stick that in the (bed) category.”

So, who could he see himself spending the rest of his life with?

“I would probably marry someone like Misty May-Treanor,” says Maksim, speaking about the three-time Olympic gold medal winner at volleyball.

But the ABC dance competition doesn’t fare much better than goalie Solo, thanks to his head-butting relationship with show bosses.

“Maybe I was just not a good person for ‘DWTS,’” says Maksim, 35, who has returned once — as a guest judge.

‘I had a giant fight with producers’

“I was never about politics or looking good for the camera,” he says. “I had one job, to teach someone how to dance.”

“I had a giant fight with producers. I can be lying to myself or be true to myself and I chose to be true to myself.”

VENGEFUL NICOLE CLOBBERS CRUISE!

Dumping Tom was best decision she ever made

NICOLE KIDMAN publicly humiliated her ex Tom Cruise by confessing her divorce from the pint-sized actor was one of the best things she's ever done!

While on stage at London's Women in the World conference, the 48-year-old Australian told a stunned audience her 2001 bust-up boosted her career — and helped her find true love with current hubby Keith Urban.

"I was running from my life at that time," says Nicole about splitting from Tom. "I wasn't able to handle the reality of it, and as an actor you have this wonderful thing where you can go and get lost in somebody else's life."

Nicole found emotional refuge in each new role, but eventually discovered even brilliant work could never make her completely happy.

That discovery occurred when she won the Best Actress Academy Award in 2003 for "The Hours." Nicole admits what should have been her most triumphant moment was actually the lowest point in her life.

"I was holding a gold statue and I was the loneliest I'd ever been," says Nicole.

Her misery was finally ended when she met and married Keith in 2006. Unlike her time with Tom, the "Moulin Rouge" star reveals her marriage to Keith has been one of discovery. They've grown together as they raise their daughters — Sunday Rose, 7, and Faith Margaret, 4.

However, Nicole's stab at motherhood with adopted daughter Isabella Cruise Parker, 22, hasn't gone as well. As GLOBE reported last week, Isabella banned the star from her September wedding.

Laura Palmer gets new life with the "Twin Peaks" revival, but was she ever really dead?

'TWINS PEAKS' LAURA BACK FROM THE DEAD!

THE early '90s drama "Twin Peaks" is alive again — and so is Laura Palmer, the slain homecoming queen wrapped in plastic who became the face of the quirky David Lynch series!

TV insiders say Showtime is reviving the drama featuring FBI agent Dale Cooper, played by Kyle MacLachlan, and episodes will focus on Laura, who was played by Sheryl Lee.

A clip leaked from the new set of the cult series shows Cooper walking up the steps of the old Palmer house with someone who looks like Laura at his side.

Now fans are asking if the troubled teen with a double life was ever really dead. Or will the revival due next year feature a dream sequence? Laura's twin cousin, Maddy Ferguson, was murdered during the first season — and could the mystery lady in the new clip be her?

"Peaks" fans are sure to remember Laura and Cooper saw each other in the eerie red "waiting room" in the series' 1991 finale. She promised him, "I'll see you again in 25 years."

She will always be...

YOUR HOROSCOPE

For the week of November 2 - November 8

by Emily Hamer-West

ARIES March 21 - April 20

Go big or go home when pitching for something you desperately want, Ram. With Jupiter and Uranus aligning, this idea is worthwhile, especially if it involves using someone else's money to fund! In an organizing frenzy later in the week, you find a long-lost item under the clutter!

TAURUS April 21 - May 21

Grab hold of Saturn's energy and look around you, Bull—there's easy money to be made if you just see the opening! Getting more exercise helps you perk up—join a pal for a daily walk! Sunday brings a meeting with a potential partner. However, if a little voice in your head says “no,” best listen!

GEMINI May 22 - June 21

Step out of the spotlight, Twin. It's time for you to work behind the scenes to keep your family's affairs running smoothly. Check documents and prescriptions for errors Tuesday. Set aside time for a special meal with your partner under the midweek Leo moon. Your mate's feeling a little blue.

CANCER June 22 - July 22

A life change you've longed for is finally knocking on your door—are you ready for your dream job, house move or perfect love? Just don't let a Mercury-Jupiter clash spoil the thrill midweek. Walking away from a troubling situation is better than struggling to keep your anger under control!

LEO July 23 - August 23

Ouch! A home repair leaves an unexpected dent in the budget but the stars align to send replacement cash your way by the weekend. Breaking up is hard to do, especially when it's caused by a tall tale about your partner or a pal! Don't believe everything you hear! The number 8 brings luck.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDAY

MATTHEW McCONAUGHEY turns 46 on
Nov. 4

VIRGO August 24 - September 22

Although you tend to stick to practical purchases, Venus says you deserve to indulge now and again. Think in terms of a down comforter and that lovely artwork you've been admiring. The weekend finds you a bit envious of someone's good fortune but when they offer to share, all will be good!

LIBRA September 23 - October 23

Hold your cards close to your chest when hanging out with someone new. There's no reason this person needs to know everything—tell only what you're comfortable with. This weekend, keep your budget firmly in mind, as the Scorpio sun tends to throw fiscal sense out the window!

SCORPIO October 24 - November 22

A chance to travel suddenly pops up, and you desperately want to take it. But run it by your partner first—it could cause some tension and jealousy at home. Ignoring a health symptom doesn't make it go away. Make an appointment for a checkup—the cosmos says you'll get good news!

SAGITTARIUS November 23 - December 21

Saturn helps a moneymaking idea you've been nurturing get off the ground and cash starts flowing in—but that doesn't mean you can spend it carelessly! Setting some aside for a rainy day is financially savvy. The midweek Leo moon is lucky for love, whether you're single or wed.

CAPRICORN December 22 - January 20

That old saying about a bird in hand has never been so true, Goat child. So seize the opportunity you're given—now! Get rid of junk food from your pantry and stop eating sugar! Your energy will soar and the pounds will drop off. Call or visit old friends Sunday—they reveal a long-held secret!

AQUARIUS January 21 - February 18

Change is hard but necessary—and it promises to make life oh, so much better. A tense situation with a coworker or relative eases under the Scorpion sun, and the confrontation you've been dreading doesn't happen. Slow down for a few days and you'll be ready for weekend fun.

PISCES February 19 - March 20

When someone pressures you to sign on the spot to secure your financial future, take a step back—there's something fishy about the deal that won't be revealed until Mercury aligns with Neptune on Friday. Family members ask you to be the party planner for the upcoming holidays—say yes!

COUGAR COURTNEY'S TURKEY NECK TERROR!

Aging beauty on nip/tuck binge before wedding to younger hunk

OBSESSED over erasing the age gap with her toyboy groom, desperate Courtney Cox has plunged into a shocking nip/tuck spree.

The 51-year-old “Cougar Town” babe, who’s set to wed rocker Johnny McDaid, 43, has already plumped her face with fillers and injections.

Pals say she’s now arranging a hush-hush operation to get rid of her “turkey neck” and erase the wrinkles around her boobs.

“Courtney’s just had another big round of Botox and fillers, which always makes her neck look older until it settles,” says an insider. “But this time she’s decided she wants to do something about it. She’s talking to her surgeon about a neck lift. She hates her ‘turkey wattle.’”

“She also wants her cleavage lasered so it’s smooth and youthful. She wants to wear a strapless wedding dress so she sees this as crucial work.”

Courtney has denied resorting to major cosmetic fixes in the past. “It’s no secret I’ve had some Botox, but I won’t go under the knife,” she said recently. “Johnny isn’t into that whole Hollywood look anyway, so I don’t feel pressure to keep looking like a 20-year-old for him.”

But her impending nuptials have made her desperate to look young for her groom.

“Courtney is sensitive about their eight-year age gap, which is why she spends so much time fussing over her appearance,” says a source. “Johnny has told her time and again she’s beautiful just the way she is. But Courtney can’t resist trying new treatments, and she’s desperate to look her best for the wedding.”

Courtney confessed to pals she has “nightmares over the idea of looking like a middle-aged woman in her wedding photos,” the source says.

“She thinks it’s possible to look like a twentysomething when she should be growing old gracefully.”

Cox and McDaid started dating in December 2013

Despite an already puffy face – a likely sign of Botox and fillers – the former “Friends” star is now obsessed with nipping her “turkey wattle”

RACIST LOU REED BEAT HIS WOMEN

ROCK bad boy Lou Reed was “a monster” who abused women and hurled racial slurs like Frisbees!

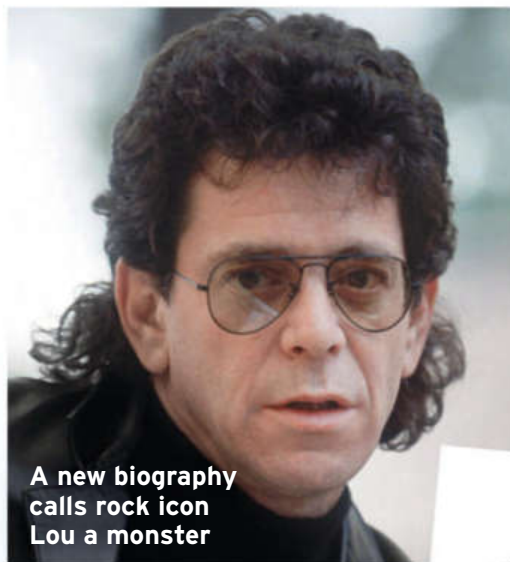

Lou, best known for the hit “Walk on the Wild Side,” lived his anthem!

The singer once described Bob Dylan as a “pretentious ke,” according to “Notes from the Velvet Underground,” a new book by Howard Sounes. The author says Lou “was really a very unpleasant man. A monster really.”

No argument there from Bettye Kronstad, who wed the star in 1973. Lou says he used her as his personal punching bag. “He would, like, pin you up against a wall,” she recalls. “Tussle you. Hit you ... shake you ... And then one time he actually gave me a black eye.”

And Lou once slapped down David Bowie for suggesting he cut down on booze and drugs.

The rocker, who died in 2013 after a liver

But nothing could cure his miserable personality. Lou’s old friend Paul Morrissey said the singer should be remembered as “The Worst Person Who Ever Lived.”

Married Tom’s mistress Charlotte Laws says she believes the bad blood erupted after Engelbert tried to seduce her!

Charlotte, now 55, had a three-year affair with Tom in the ‘70s when he and Engelbert were recording rivals.

She says she met “Enge,” now 79, when he was performing in Las Vegas, across the street from Tom’s Sin City concert venue. Charlotte was invited to Engelbert’s private dressing room.

When she walked in, Charlotte recalls, “he stood up, went into the center of the room and said, ‘I think I have a problem’ – and

Humperdinck and Tom in 1969, before the pair fell out dropped his trousers.” She insists nothing happened – but Tom is still carrying a grudge.

Best known for hits like “What’s New Pussycat,” Tom, now 75, was asked if he’d ever patch things up with Engelbert.

The Welsh-born singer snapped, “No. It’s as I say, once a c, always a c!”

TOM PETTY HOOKED ON HEROIN AT AGE 50!

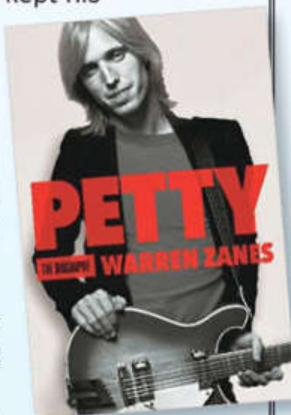

Tom was addicted to the powerful drug during a mid-‘90s midlife crisis

THEIR KERS!

 SEX and drugs and rock 'n' roll were too much for Tom Petty for handle, but the "Breakdown" singer kept his smack addiction secret – until now.

In a new book, "Petty: The Biography," the Heartbreakers frontman admits he got hooked on heroin in the 1990s while struggling with a nasty divorce and the pressure of a grueling tour and recording schedule.

The unauthorized biography by Warren Zanes reveals Tom started shooting dope during his 1996 split from wife Jane Benyo because "he did not know what to do with the pain he was feeling."

Tom copped to using hard drugs for the first time after Warren promised the "warts-and-all" book would be a "cautionary tale" that would not romanticize drug addiction.

Although Heartbreakers band member Howie Epstein died of a heroin overdose after a stint in rehab, Tom, now 64, would only acknowledge at the time he smoked pot. The rocker kept his silence, the author says, because he didn't want young fans to think hard drugs were cool.

THE Ramones stunk – literally!

That's because the punk rock band's lead singer, Joey Ramone, suffered from chronic body odor and NEVER changed his clothes.

Joey, who died from cancer at age 49, suffered from obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD) and finally decided "it was easier just to never change his clothes" than to "get dressed with all his rituals, putting a shirt on, taking it off again, hundreds of times," says Marky Ramone's wife, Marion. "On airplanes all the seats around Joey would empty, the smell was so bad!"

In addition to smelling funky, she also says Joey suffered from chronic foot infections – because his socks went unchanged and he didn't wash.

But other group members were head cases, too!

Dee Dee, who succumbed to cancer at 50, was a kleptomaniac dooper and an overweight bulimic! His wife called 911 for his drug lapses so often operators eventually started to recognize her voice. He died in 2002.

And Johnny, who was claimed by cancer at 55, was a racist who beat his girlfriends and lived off canned sardines because he was "tight," says the band's lone survivor, drummer Marky, 59, who battled booze.

RAMONES BATTLED BULIMIA, ADDICTION — AND CHRONIC B.O.!!

The Ramones (from left), Dee Dee, Joey, Marky and Johnny Ramone were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 2002

CIA BOSS PLANNED JFK ASSASSINATION!

-new book charges

The plot that fooled the world: JFK was murdered in Dallas to stop him from overhauling the CIA, according to the shocking new book

Spy agency and Pentagon saw President as a threat

CIA DIRECTOR Allen Dulles and top Pentagon officials authorized President John F. Kennedy's execution in a twisted bid to save America and eliminate a "threat to national security!"

And a shocking new book, "The Devil's Chessboard: Allen Dulles, the CIA, and The Rise of America's Secret Government," details the murder plot — and the chilling cover-up!

According to author David Talbot, there was a "clear consensus" among Dulles' lieutenants and military officials that JFK had to go — the Commander-in-Chief was determined to reign in America's spy agency after it sponsored the failed 1961 Bay of Pigs Invasion to topple Cuba's Communist dictator Fidel Castro. And murder was the best way to take the President out of the picture. Dulles, who was booted from the Kennedy Administration, took charge, determined to even the score.

The ruthless spy "was the only man with the stature, connection and decisive will to make something of this enormity happen,"

JFK sits with CIA honchos Dulles and McCone — the men who engineered and covered up his assassination, says the author writes Talbot.

Dulles sanctioned torture, mind control experiments and other assassinations — defending his actions as being in America's interest, Talbot reveals.

After JFK was killed in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, Dulles then took control of the cover-up. He had himself named to the Warren Commission investigating the crime.

Dulles worked with his CIA successor, John McCone, to frame Lee Harvey Oswald as the "lone gunman" behind the murder Talbot claims.

The Warren Commission report has since been discredited. But Washington insiders say Dulles literally got away with murder.

A Man of Faith!

PRESIDENT Lyndon B. Johnson was a “sexual gorilla” who put an alarm on the Oval Office door so he could use it as his private brothel, an explosive new book reveals!

Incredibly, the Texas Terror openly boasted about his conquests and thought nothing of copping a feel right in front of his wife, Lady Bird, who tolerated his crude antics for the same reasons Hillary Clinton puts up with her skirt-chasing hubby, Bill – blind ambition and political power!

In “Lady Bird and Lyndon – The Hidden Story of a Marriage that Made a President,” author Betty Boyd Caroli says the Democrat reveled in his “physical power” and the number of notches on his belt.

The man who took over the presidency after John F. Kennedy was assassinated loved to brag “he had more women by chance than JFK had on purpose,” Caroli says. And he’d boast to White House reporters about his studly status saying, “Take no notice of me coming in and out of a few women’s bedrooms. That is none of your business.”

But sometimes his shenanigans were hard to ignore. One of the First Lady’s staffers recalls, “nearly every time I saw him, it was a squeeze on the butt, or putting his arm around my waist and pulling me to his side.” He warned another young aide, “If you wear a tight dress like that, you are going to get your bottom pinched.” A few days later, he phoned the same girl and ordered her to get “rested up ... hair fixed real pretty... get perfumed up.” This was his way of saying he wanted a “matinee” – his term for lunchtime sex.

LBJ WAS AMERICA’S MOST PERVY PREZ!

His favorite playmates included glamorous Texas secretary Mary Margaret Wiley, who eventually married Jack Valenti, Hollywood’s most powerful lobbyist. There was talk Mary, not Lady Bird, performed “all the wifely chores” for LBJ. But a White House aide insisted this was just “vicious” gossip – that Mrs. Johnson kept the father of her daughters Luci and Lynda happy.

But not happy enough. Advertising exec Madeleine Duncan Brown claimed her son, Steven, was sired by LBJ. After the politician died in 1973, she received a letter from a lawyer promising to “continue with the financial arrangements that Lyndon provided for you and Steve.”

Jane Lynch returns to TV as brassy, colorful Amy, who helps a by-the-book dermatologist named Allison Fuller (Maggie Lawson) navigate her life via crazy predictions and advice. Is she an angel or just an oddball?

SULTRY SHARON Stone has followed her basic instincts to primetime TV — she's starring on TNT's new spy drama "Agent X."

On the series, which premieres this week, 57-year-old Stone plays America's first female Vice President Natalie Maccabee, who's handed the reins to Agent X by her chief steward (Gerald McRaney).

That special operative, AKA John Case (Jeff Hephner), is the VP's secret weapon sent into sticky situations when government or law enforcement agencies can't get the job done.

Suave, badass Case is a "one-man army" and very much an American answer to Britain's James Bond. And Stone's character is no push-over, either! She soon finds herself getting in on the undercover action.

Ducking danger, on-screen and off, is no hardship for Stone. She's headlined shoot-'em-up films like "The Quick and the Dead" and battled back from an ugly 2001 brain hemorrhage.

"I came out of the hospital with short and long-term memory loss," explains Stone. "I couldn't hear out of my right ear. The side of my face was falling down. I thought 'I'll never be pretty again.'"

But she regained her looks and relaunched her career, even booking a four-episode arc on "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit" in 2010.

"Agent X" debuts on Nov. 8 at 9 p.m. with a two-hour episode.

CODE BLACK CAT FIGHT

Bonnie Somerville
and Marcia Gay Harden of "Code Black"

THE REAL trauma at CBS's freshman medical drama "Code Black" isn't in the ER – it's behind the scenes!

Word is lead actress Marcia Gay Harden and second banana Bonnie Somerville hate each other's guts!

"There's major tension between these two, and it hasn't helped that they've essentially been pitted against each other," says an insider.

Somerville, 41, was originally scripted to be the star of the show. But 56-year-old Oscar winner Harden tested better with early audiences – and landed the top job.

As a result, her character Dr. Leanne Rorish was beefed up, at Bonnie's expense, adds the source.

"Obviously Bonnie's jealous as hell," even though she has top billing in the credits. "It's led to some nasty scenes," says the insider.

For now, it's Code Red on the set, so expect someone to check out of "Code Black" by season's end!

HERE COMES THE JUDGE!

BRITAIN's answer to "Judge Judy" is coming across the pond to face down our favorite TV law lady!

Judge Robert Rinder is a "top barrister" who rubs elbows with David Beckham and Benedict Cumberbatch. The 37-year-old hotshot had no designs on TV stardom until he landed his own program on the U.K.'s ITV network three seasons ago.

Now, he's eagerly launching an American version of his popular British legal show.

The Brit
judge will be going head-to-head with Judge Judy

Viewers will be familiar with the format: He settles kerfuffles between friends, family and neighbors – all with a dose of snark.

He told one "guest" on his show, "if you had been at the Last Supper, you would have asked for ketchup."

Can he can cut the mustard on American TV? The smug Rinder seems to have no doubts: "America could do with a course of British justice!" he says.

"They shouldn't be scared, they should be honored. Move over Judge Judy indeed."

TV NEWS EXTRA

DR. QUINN'S TV SON IS MEDICINE MAN!

Chad Allen

AFTER more than 30 years,

"Dr. Quinn: Medicine

Woman" star and gay activist

Chad Allen has closed the door on Hollywood – and he's opening a new one into a shrink's office!

"I've been focusing on my education and working as a clinical psychologist, which is something that I'm super excited about," the 41-year-old former actor says in a farewell video to fans filmed earlier this year.

"I'll be able to affect the world in a slightly different way."

Child star and teen heartthrob Allen first gained notice as Dr. Westphall's autistic son, Tommy, on the 1980s series "St. Elsewhere." He worked on more than 35 TV shows and played Matthew, the adopted son of Jane Seymour's feisty frontier doctor, on "Dr. Quinn" for six seasons.

"I have no regrets," he says.

"I plan on being much less public, finishing my doctorate in clinical psychology, writing, working in private practice and maybe teaching some."

Player 'kicks ass' after coach visits his estranged wife

MATT

FISHER

NBA LOVE TRIANGLE

EXPLODES!

AN NBA coach got punched in the mouth by a married player for romancing his estranged wife!

Matt Barnes, a 12-year NBA veteran, became enraged after learning New York Knicks coach Derek Fisher, 41, was at home with his buxom spouse.

The wild brawl only ended when one of Barnes' crying twin sons begged the men to stop!

The children — Isaiah and Carter, 6 — are stuck in the middle of the sordid love triangle between Barnes, Fisher and gorgeous brunette Gloria Govan.

Barnes, 35, insists he drove 95 miles to the Redondo Beach, Calif., home he once shared with Gloria to check on the twins — not to confront Derek.

While chatting with Carter on video through his computer, Barnes could tell his son was upset.

"I was, like, 'What's wrong, Carter?' and he shook his head 'No,'" Barnes recalls. "Then he lays his head down on the couch, puts a pillow in front of his face and says, 'Mommy's friend Derek is here.'"

Barnes then raced over and confronted Fisher.

After the fracas, Barnes reportedly text-bragged, "I kicked his ass from the backyard to the front room."

A subdued Fisher, who was divorced earlier this year, isn't talking. "Personal and private matters are personal and private," he says.

The sultry Gloria, 45, is known for her splashy role on VH1 reality show "Basketball Wives LA," while Barnes now plays for the Memphis Grizzlies.

CARREY MAKES PEACE WITH SUICIDE GAL'S GRIEVING KIN!

Star SHOULDERS CASKET at ex-lover's funeral

Jim helps carry the coffin of ex-girlfriend Cathriona from the church to the burial grounds in Ireland

GUILT-RIDDEN funnyman Jim Carrey flew to Ireland on a private jet in a desperate bid to make up with the family of his tragic ex-girlfriend — who he feared blamed him for her death!

Jim, 53, arrived at the airport in Dublin at 2 a.m. the day of the funeral in a Gulfstream V private jet.

He'd made the 6,000-mile trip - at an estimated cost of $100,000 - to offer to help carry the coffin of tragic Cathriona White, 30, who killed herself just a few days after Jim dumped her. Sources say several notes were found at the scene of White's death, including one that read: "Jim, I love you. Please forgive me, I'm not for this world."

"Jim was relieved that the family reached out to him," says a source close to the Hollywood star. "He knew a lot of people were blaming him for what happened to Cathriona. When her family made it clear they wanted him at the funeral, he didn't hesitate. They knew Jim and Cathriona had problems but they also knew that Jim had been an important part of her life."

Prescription pills

The "Dumb and Dumber" star looked distraught as he walked behind the motorcade carrying the body of his ex, who it was revealed was married to ANOTHER man after her body was found in her Sherman Oaks, Calif., home on Sept. 28.

Police also found prescription pills next to the young woman's body, some of which were reportedly obtained under an alias used by Jim.

Following the funeral service, Jim helped members of Cathriona's family carry her coffin through the town, and as she was laid to rest, he hugged her relatives.

Tragic Cathriona had been branded a failure by her estranged mother just days before her death, it was revealed, and police say White had attempted suicide BEFORE, in 2012, after the death of her father, Pat.

DOLLY SAYS WE'RE RIGHT!

COUNTRY queen Dolly Parton confirmed the exclusive story in GLOBE's last issue about her recent health drama – that she'd been in the hospital with kidney stones.

We told readers how the 69-year-old star arrived at Vanderbilt University Medical Center in Nashville in agony.

Our report stated a medical team ran tests and diagnosed the source of her pain as kidney stones before giving her laser treatment.

In a statement posted to her website after the story was published, Parton told fans, "It is true that I had kidney stones. I had them removed three weeks ago and I am doing just fine!"

Thanks, Dolly, for confirming the accuracy of our reporting.

TRAGIC "Rocky Horror Picture Show" star Tim Curry must be very eager to take his final curtain call.

The 69-year-old actor, who played Dr. Frank-N-Furter in the 1975 cult film, is now using a motorized wheelchair following a stroke — and still SMOKING!

Incredibly, he had a killer pack of cigarettes on his chair when he wheeled out of his Beverly Hills doctor's office Oct. 14.

"Tim must have a death wish," says a friend. "Why else would he continue smoking?"

"Everyone knows cigarettes can kill you — even if you've never suffered a stroke."

Dr. Stuart Fischer tells GLOBE:

"He must be crazy to do this! Things like tobacco cause inflammation in the lungs and arteries.

"The LAST thing he needs are narrowed arteries in the brain.

"This could cause another stroke superimposed in the same anatomical area of the brain — which will either incapacitate him completely or kill him."

Tim was felled by a stroke in July 2012 that affected his ability to speak and partially paralyzed him, forcing the star to employ the motorized chair.

Since the medical tragedy, he's rarely been seen in public.

One such appearance came back in June at the Tony Awards in the Big Apple, when he was honored with The Actors Fund Lifetime Achievement Award.

CRIPPLED TIM CURRY'S TRAGIC DEATH WISH

'Rocky Horror' star STILL SMOKING killer cigarettes after devastating stroke put him in wheelchair

As the "sweet transvestite" star of "Rocky Horror" (left), Tim played a doctor with some wacky ideas. Now using a wheelchair, he thinks it's okay to keep sucking on the coffin nails, even when visiting his doctor!

Though best known for "Rocky Horror" and roles in films like 1985's "Clue" and playing the harried hotel concierge in 1992's "Home Alone 2: Lost in New York," Tim has also starred on Broadway. He created the title role in "Amadeus," and starred in the comedy "Spamalot," in which he played King Arthur, a death-defying hero.

Dr. Fischer, author of "The Park Avenue Diet," warns the fact that Tim is still puffing means he has "a very serious nicotine addiction that goes beyond the psychological. It's a physical addiction."

FLASHBACK

WHY DESI DIDN'T CUT THE MUSTARD

Even when her marriage to DESI ARNAZ was on the rocks, LUCILLE BALL was a hot dog who could still get a laugh! If Desi looks nervous in this frank shot from 1945, it's because the couple had just reunited after a nasty spat that had his fiery red-headed wife talking divorce! They decided to continue their four-year-old marriage – which ONLY survived because Ball got bandleader Ricky off the road and onto their legendary TV show, "I Love Lucy," in 1951. However, the Latin lothario's skirt-chasing eventually proved too much for the couple. They finally called it quits in 1960, but loved each other until the day they died!
